Coronavirus Response (COVID-19) March 13, 2020

At ICRMP, our members come first. As your risk management and insurance partner, we continue to closely monitor the impacts of Coronavirus (COVID-19). More cases of COVID-19 are likely to be identified in the coming days in Idaho. It's likely that person-to-person spread will occur. Public agencies such as Counties, Cities, Water/Sewer Districts, Fire Districts, Schools and Colleges may experience absenteeism that will affect services to constituents. Critical infrastructure such as law enforcement, emergency medical services and other first responders will also be affected.

With more cases appearing and concern growing daily, we want to provide you with an update on our operations as well as share information that may help you navigate through your current uncertainty. ICRMP has robust business continuity plans throughout our organization and we remain available to you, as always, without interruption. In the weeks ahead, we know that you will need ICRMP to support you, your operations and your responses to employees and constituents, and we will be there.

Some members may be considering implementing personnel policy amendments to address this virus by establishing quarantine measures, paid time off use, remote work options and other responsive measures. If doing so, we encourage you to reach out to our Risk Management team to ensure any changes will not create liability to your agency:
